

How Have Christians Come to Believe Differently?

Sixbert SANGWA • August 09, 2024

In today's Christian landscape, it is common to find believers who profess to be Christians yet hold differing and sometimes contradictory beliefs. This trend is particularly challenging because many who identify as Christians hold beliefs and practices that starkly contrast with the core teachings of the Bible. This divergence among believers is not merely a difference of opinion but a manifestation of deep spiritual divisions sown by Satan, the deceiver. It is heartbreaking to witness how many people are inclined towards these deviations and, even more tragically, refuse to listen to those who speak the truth. How did we arrive at this point where there are so many different interpretations of Christianity, yet so few who truly walk the narrow path that leads to eternal life?

The root of these divisions can be traced back to the work of Satan, who has been relentless in his efforts to disrupt and distort the true faith. The Bible warns us of his schemes in 1Peter 5:8, where we are told, "Be sober-minded; be watchful. Your adversary the devil prowls around like a roaring lion, seeking someone to devour." Through cunning and deceit, Satan has managed to introduce false teachings and heresies into the church, leading many astray.

One of the most significant ways Satan has achieved this is through the influence of secret societies such as the Illuminati. This organization, known for its sinister goals, has been instrumental in establishing and influencing theological schools. These schools, under the guise of promoting higher learning and Christian education, have subtly injected liberal theology into the minds of future church leaders. Liberal theology, which often denies the authority of Scripture, has led many to question the foundational truths of the Christian faith. As a result, the teachings of these theological institutions have produced pastors and leaders who propagate ideas that are far removed from biblical Christianity. The ultimate goal of the Illuminati is to destroy Christianity and bring about the reign of the Antichrist under the New World Order.

Furthermore, the Illuminati has not only influenced theological education but has also established churches and ministries that serve as conduits for disseminating new, distorted interpretations of the Bible. These churches, often appearing to be mainstream or even evangelical, have subtly introduced doctrines that deviate from the truth. They may preach a gospel of inclusion that overlooks the necessity of repentance and holiness, or they may emphasize social justice at the expense of the gospel of salvation. In doing so, they lead many into a form of Christianity that is more palatable to the world but far removed from the teachings of Christ. There are many religions in this category, ranging from old mega-churches to modern ministries.

Adding to the confusion, many Christian leaders have appointed themselves to positions within the church, claiming to hold offices in the Holy Spirit without a genuine call from God. This phenomenon is particularly evident in the rise of self-proclaimed apostles, prophets, and evangelists who, without the evidence of a true spiritual calling, assume positions of authority. The Bible warns against such individuals in Jeremiah 14:14: "And the Lord said to me: 'The prophets are prophesying lies in my name. I did not send them, nor did I command them or speak to them. They are prophesying to you a lying vision, worthless divination, and the deceit of their own minds.'" These leaders, driven by pride and ambition, often seek power, influence, and financial gain rather than the glory of God.

Tragically, some of these ministers do not derive their power from God but from Satan himself. In their quest for influence and supernatural manifestations, they have turned to occult practices, mingling the sacred with the profane. This is particularly evident in the proliferation of the prosperity gospel, which promises wealth and success in exchange for faith and financial contributions. The Bible, however, speaks clearly against such practices in 1Timothy 6:10: "For the love of money is a root of all kinds of evils. It is through this craving that some have wandered away from the faith and pierced themselves with many pangs." Moreover, these individuals have also propagated these spirits to such an extent that today, in many Christian gatherings, prophecy has become the focal point. It has reached a point where without prophecy, no prayer happens, and people doubt whether one is filled with the Holy Spirit. This obsession with prophecy over genuine spiritual growth has further distorted the true essence of Christian worship and community.

The global system, driven by secularism and materialism, significantly influences the beliefs and practices of modern Christians. Churches often face pressure to conform to worldly values, leading to the compromise of biblical truths. In many regions, churches have adopted liberal theology and the prosperity gospel to attract larger congregations and appease government authorities. This trend aligns with the end-time deception prophesied in 2 Timothy 4:3-4: "For the time is coming when people will not endure sound teaching, but having itching ears they will accumulate for themselves teachers to suit their own passions, and will turn away from listening to the truth and wander off into myths."

The world promotes a culture of relativism, where truth is seen as subjective, and personal beliefs take precedence over absolute truth. This mindset has infiltrated the Church, causing Christians to hold differing beliefs on fundamental issues such as salvation, the authority of Scripture, and the nature of God. Worly phrases like "there are no wrong ideas" and "all ideas are valid" have become common, leading to the misuse of biblical principles such as "don't judge, lest you be judged" (Matthew 7:1). Misinterpreting this verse has led many to avoid correction and accountability, promoting a form of liberal theology that undermines biblical authority. The apostle John warned believers not to love the world or the things in it, stating, "For the world is passing away, and the lust of it; but he who does the will of God abides forever" (1 John 2:17). When the Church allows itself to be influenced by the world, it compromises its witness and becomes divided.

Liberal theology and the prosperity gospel have captivated many, as have the love of satanic miracles and false prophecies. These deceptive doctrines appeal to the fleshly desires of individuals, offering them a form of godliness without the power thereof (2 Timothy 3:5). The Bible is clear that in the last days, false prophets and teachers will arise, leading many astray. Jesus Himself warned in Matthew 24:24: "For false christs and false prophets will arise and perform great signs and wonders, so as to lead astray, if possible, even the elect."

The sad reality is that while there are many who claim the title of "Christian," there are few who truly follow Christ. Jesus spoke of this narrow path in Matthew 7:13-14: "Enter by the narrow gate. For the gate is wide and the way is easy that leads to destruction, and those who enter by it are many. For the gate is narrow and the way is hard that leads to life, and those who find it are few." This verse underscores the fact that true Christianity is not a matter of outward profession but of inward transformation. Many know that Christianity is the only true faith from God, but abiding by its demands—denying oneself, taking up the cross, and following Jesus (Matthew 16:24)—is challenging. This difficulty often leads to a superficial embrace of the Christian label without a deep commitment to its principles.

In conclusion, the divisions we see among Christians today are not random but are the result of a deliberate strategy by Satan to weaken the church from within. Through the influence of secret societies like the Illuminati, the establishment of false churches, the appointment of self-serving leaders, and the promotion of heretical doctrines, many have been led astray. The influence of the global system has further compounded this problem, leading to a widespread departure from biblical Christianity. This aligns with the prophesied climax of end-time apostasy and the rise of the Antichrist state. As it is written in 2 Thessalonians 2:3-4: "Let no one deceive you in any way. For that day will not come, unless the rebellion comes first, and the man of lawlessness is revealed, the son of destruction, who opposes and exalts himself against every so-called god or object of worship, so that he takes his seat in the temple of God, proclaiming himself to be God." This scripture clearly indicates that the widespread apostasy we are witnessing is a precursor to the revealing of the Antichrist.

Yet, in the midst of this deception, the call remains for true believers to stand firm in the faith, to discern the spirits, and to hold fast to the teachings of Scripture. As it says in 1Timothy 4:1: "Now the Spirit expressly says that in later times some will depart from the faith by devoting themselves to deceitful spirits and teachings of demons." This verse underscores the importance of vigilance and discernment in these perilous times. As we approach the end of the age, may we be found among the few who walk the narrow path that leads to eternal life.
